Re: A Picture is worth a thousand words!

In 1911, Arthur Brisbane said, "Use a picture. It's worth a thousand words." The phrase we hear today, "A picture is worth a thousand words", has changed over time and some of the iterations are quite interesting. My favorite is actually from 1910: "One picture is worth several pages of an ordinary law brief for the illuminative ideas it suggests." (Anonymous) In 1912, one advertisement read, "One picture is worth a dozen chapters of mere words." With that being said, enjoy this update and get a glimpse of all the fun we have at Raven Hill.

Scouts enjoy exploring indoors and outside. They often spend extra time playing in the Schoolhouse, where they take turns being the "teacher".

School field trips encourage exploration and discovery, sometimes requiring great concentration and innovative uses of the interactive exhibits.

Fused glass is a popular class for everyone!

Birthday parties are great fun for everyone, especially, when there is a range of different ages involved! We even host "adult" birthday parties. Schedule a celebration here soon!

Volunteer Days are the first Monday of most months. Everyone works on the refrigerator task list and the day always ends with a potluck for nourishment AND socialization. It's worth coming just for the food and friendships. Come join us!
